

Getting Wilde behind the camera! Olivia makes music video directorial debut for Red Hot Chili Peppers' latest single release

By Dailymail.com Reporter

She played the wife of a recording mogul in HBO's Vinyl.

And now Olivia Wilde is once again dabbling in the music industry, albeit in a more hands-on capacity.

The 32-year-old actress landed her first ever music video directing gig when she was tapped to helm the Red Hot Chili Peppers' video for their brand new single Dark Necessities.

First timer: Olivia Wilde, 32, landed her first ever music video directing gig when she was tapped to helm the Red Hot Chili Peppers' video for their brand new single Dark Necessities

The relatively long and somewhat disjointed video starts with the members of the band sandwiched between the cushions of an old couch.

Pictures flash of a bruised and bleeding girl on a bed before a cut to lead singer Anthony Kiedis apparently psyching himself up in the corner of a wood-paneled room.

Several portraits of some skateboarding girls flash on the screen as the music continues to build.

Band members make another appearance, this time playing their instruments, though they are not synced to the music.

Music maven: Olivia (right) played the wife of a recording mogul in HBO's Vinyl

- Lazy guys: The relatively long and somewhat disjointed video starts with the members of the band sandwiched between the cushions of an old couch

- Getting ready: Pictures flash of a bruised and bleeding girl on a bed before a cut to lead singer Anthony Kiedis apparently psyching himself up in the corner of a wood-paneled room

- Pretty faces: Several portraits of some skateboarding girls flash on the screen as the music continues to build

- Confusing: Band members make another appearance, this time playing their instruments, though they are not synced to the music

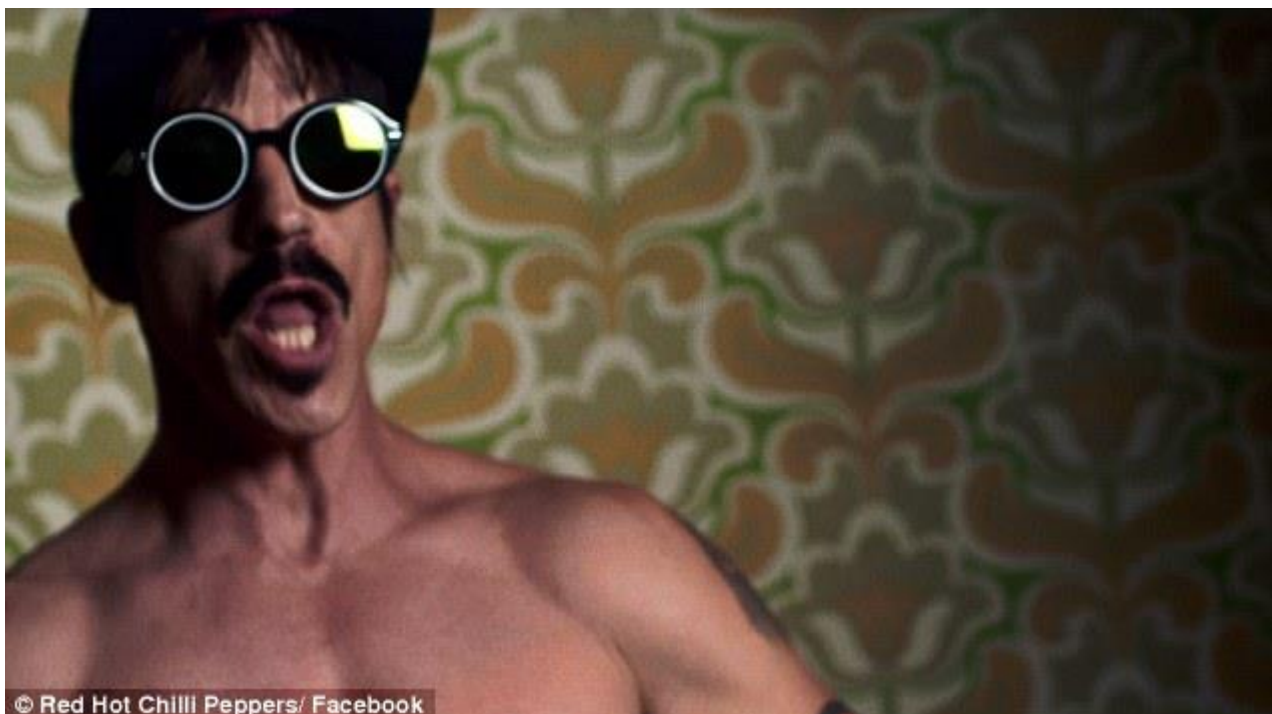

As the tune starts in earnest, the music seems to sync up with the action, and the skateboard girls from earlier can be seen taking to the streets on their boards.

Singer Anthony reappears with some wild circular shades and a multicolored ball cap with a flat bill.

More cuts between the band and the skateboarders follow, and it soon becomes clear why the initial girl was bleeding, as all the skateboarders start experiencing violent falls.

On the road: As the tune starts in earnest, the music seems to sync up with the action, and the skateboard girls from earlier can be seen taking to the streets on their boards

Unique outfit: Singer Anthony reappears with some wild circular shades and a multicolored ball cap with a flat bill

- Look out! More cuts between the band and the skateboarders follow, and it soon becomes clear why the initial girl was bleeding, as all the skateboarders start experiencing violent falls

Following the epic crashes, the girls then apparently decide to get inner lip tattoos.

The video ends with more shots of the band and the skateboard girls, who have started riding again, this time in a dry LA River.

Though the video was only released on Thursday, it had already garnered almost five million views.

The full album, titled The Getaway, drops on Friday.

- Why not? Following the epic crashes, the girls then apparently decide to get inner lip tattoos

- Job done: Towards the end of the video, some band members appear to be slowing down

- Classic shot: The video ends with more shots of the band and the skateboard girls, who have started riding again, this time in a dry LA River

Read more: